Digests of Current NYC Theatre Reviews

Take A Giant Step- Jan Hus 9/25. 3 rave votes and one mild con vote recorded for revival of Louis Peterson's 1953 play presented by New Theatre Company. Times, Herald Tribune and Post reviewers applauded vigorous production of play about Negro adolescence. Atkinson, Times, cheered Bill Gunn for portraying the leading role with freshness and beauty in the robust and knowing second hearing of the script. Beckley, Herald Tribune, recommended play as one that ought to be seen by anyone interested in the contemporary theatre. Entire cast, as well as Ira Circker's direction and Richard Jackson's sets in the 74th St basement theatre were applauded by both critics. Watts, Post, doubted if Gunn was quite as appealing as Louis Gossett who created lead role, but critic thought Gunn handled part believably and well. Post reviewer agreed with colleagues that play deserves a second chance. Sole dissenter was McClain, Journal American, complimented all concerned for a good job, but feared that play falls short due to the fact that the boy's self pity looms larger than that felt by the audience.

Judy Garland Show-Palace 9/26. 6 rave notices, 1 mild notice (from McClain, Journal American) heralded the return of Judy Garland, a favorite of critics and audiences. A song has not really been sung until Judy pulls herself together and belts it through the theatre, sums up Times man. Perfect, concluded Kerr, Herald Tribune. Coleman, Mirror, reported that she garnered thunderous applause and deserved every bit of it. Socko, sensational, dynamic, adds Donnelly, World-Telegram & Sun. Watts, Post, voiced minor criticism that her act might have been staged with more imagination, but found her winning ways as potent as ever. McClain, Journal American, feared that her 1951 Palace show was better. Supporting acts in first half of bill-including Alan King and Bob Williams were applauded by all the reviewers.

The National Theatre on W. 41st has been sold by Shuberts to Harry Fromkes, former owner of Playhouse Theatre. He paid $900,000 cash and will change the name of the theatre to the George M. Cohan Theatre at the conclusion of the run of Inherit the Wind. The Shuberts still must dispose of the St. James Theatre by Feb 1958 in accord with the anti-trust decree.

THEATRE

COMMENTS

"Bernard Shaw, His Life, Works and Friends" by St. John Ervine(Morrow) is a long(628 pages), lively biography, rates Atkinson, Times. 50 of his 94 years are recorded with fresh detail making the book a major work in the field.

"Les Girls" by Constance Tomkinson(Atlantic, Little Brown) is dull account of author's adventures as dancer in 1930's with Folies Bergere and other groups. Cover suggests more bawdy fun than book contains, sighs Down, Variety.

OUT OF

HEALTHY STATE... Current verbal battle on merits of US and British theatre launched by Helen Hayes is viewed as a healthy state by London Times editorial. British daily granted that there are no English writers capable of making the vital impact on a big public that is made by Arthur Miller and Tennessee Williams. British theatre on the other-hand is in a state of restlessness. Writers there are trying to cast off the fetters of naturalism and they strain towards the more poetic and fantastic interpretations of life. Until somebody has found the unmistakable way towards a new kind of theatre statement, paper concludes, audiences can do nothing much beyond splitting into sections each backing its own fancied pioneer.

COLUMN TIPS... Gretchen Wyler will take over for Gwen Verdon, Damn Yankee, hears Winchell... Theatre Guild wants to produce Shaw's In Good King Charles Golden Days notes Walker... Shaw estate netting $5000 per week from NY productions, sums up Lyons... Sammy Davis will quit Mr. Wonderful in March, reports Kilgallen.

DRAMA MAIL-BOX... Hawkins, former World-Telegram-Sun critic, notes to Variety that he did not quit because his copy was edited, but because he felt he was through with the job... 4 Times readers cheered article on "Lost Words"; one reader complained that she missed many words even though she always sat in first few rows of orchestra... Avant garde plays that make the viewer suffer instead of being entertained, were panned by a "C. D" subscriber.

CRITICAL THOUGHTS... NYC is a Tivoli Gardens on a vast scale in which almost anything can be found, details Chapman, News... Gena Rowlands' performance in Middle of the Night has vastly improved along lines suggested by critics, reports Watts, Post... Arthur Miller should try his hand at adapting Brothers Karamazov for wife Marilyn Monroe, suggests Donnelly, World-Telegram & Sun.

LIBRARY BIRTHDAY... 25th anniversary of NY Public Library Theatre Collection was opened by Lillian Gish. "Theatre Highlights 1673-1956" exhibit will be shown on main floor lobby. Gish recalled that she was first actress to use the theatre collection in 1931 when studying Camille, which she revived at opening of Central City, Colo, Opera House. Chapman, News, commented that it is a great city and a great country when such research advice can be had for free.

INTERVIEW HI-LITES... Irene Hawthorne's Autobiography makes her the bravest woman on Broadway, Peper, WT & S, believes. She borrowed the money to put on her own one-woman show... Fernando Lamas, Happy Hunting, decided to accept role in Merman musical after he sang two songs at his Church of Religious Science, Los Angeles, he told Herridge, Post.

" PROS & CONS BY T.M.K. "

Take A Giant Step is a warmly written play of a Negro youth's growth. In spite of a fine 1951 Broadway production, the play flopped. The 1956 production at Jan Hus House, the first presentation of New Theatre Company, is equally fine. Acting, direction and setting are ideally suited to the wide basement stage at East 74th St. Discouraging fact is that at second night, after three rave reviews, the house was only half filled. This beautiful play does not deserve to fail twice.

Judy Garland Show at Palace is exciting for two reasons. The first is the obvious talent of the star. The second is the equally obvious and explosive enthusiasm the audience has for her. Being part of an audience that cheers, screams and stamps the floor for more is an experience unlike any other in the current theatre.

* * *

The cheers and enjoyment of the supporting bills at the Palace by the audience at the Judy Garland Show is evidence that Vaudeville is not as dead as most theatre owners think. Two-a-day vaudeville, like burlesque, trained many comedians and actors as well as providing family entertainment at the many houses throughout the city. Maybe it's time to turn some of the super-markets back into vaudeville houses.

* * *

Off Broadway managers who feel they are doing their customers a favor by presenting a short evening's entertainment(from 8 50 PM to 10 30 PM in many cases) because it takes longer to get home from the out-of-the way houses, are only kidding themselves. With the ever increasing ticket prices Off-Broadway, patrons expect and should get a full evening's entertainment.

* * *

Unless one is to assume that no tickets were sold for the week-end matinees of Saint Joan that were cancelled to allow the star of GBS play to rehearse for an Oct 15 TV performance., the Phoenix Theatre is catering to a dangerous new precedent in theatre. Certainly not every ticket-buyer for matinee or evening seats reads every paper and every drama column. Imagine the wrath of a New Haven or Trenton theatre-fan who came to NY for a Saturday matinee to find that it had been cancelled for the above reason. If this devoted theatre fan ventures to NY again this season, it would probably have to be on the written promise of the management that come hell or TV the theatre attraction will go on.

* * *

The price of a comfortable, but slightly used National Theatre, bought from the Shuberts is $1 million. Before any bargain hunter pays cash for another NY used house let him journey to Stratford, Conn. Shakespeare Festival to see what he can get for $2 million.

Plays

The Devils Disciple will be revived by Tennent and will be seen in London in November after tour starting Oct 15. Tyrone Power stars, and Noel Willman will both direct and play "Burgoyne." ... Players

Rosalinde Fuller presents her one woman show Hearts and Faces Oct 8 and Oct 15 at Arts.

Digests of London Reviews

Children's Hour presented at Arts was panned as a miscast and spiritless production of the Lillian Hellman play by Darlington, Tribune. All of actors are unsuited to parts they portray.

Mother Courage production of Brecht play by Berliner Ensemble panned by Shulman, Standard, who feared play was too often on verge of something between Dr. Calgari and an illustrated lecture.

DRAMA

REPORT

Shaw luncheon, the first meeting of Drama Desk, the NY Theatre Editors & Reporters organization, featured as guests players and directors of current and coming Shaw works. Charles Laughton and Glynis Johns of Major Barbara, Charles Adams, co-producer of Apple Cart, Moss Hart, director of My Fair Lady, and Jack Balch, director of Arms and Man, and Siobhan McKenna, of Saint Joan were featured.

Laughton and Hart agreed that GBS is a playwright master as well as a playwright of ideas. Each play and character is technically perfect, they pointed out.

McKenna thought GBS love-scenes in his Village Wooing is a classic.

As to the reasons for his break-up with Paul Gregory, Laughton would only answer "no comment." Actor-director did admit that he would like to appear in NYC some-day in a "long-hair" revue with his wife Elsa Lanchester.

Hart informed the theatre editors that he is currently working on his autobiography and is pondering directing a comedy on Broadway soon.
